

A year beyond words

Annual Report 2018

Letter from the CEO

Dear friends,

I usually begin letters to our supporters by examining our polarized political climate, or our society's need for connection, or the impact of one of our events. But for this one I will be blunt: 2018 was one of the best years in Humanities Washington's history.

We held more Speakers Bureau events than at any time since the program began. Think and Drink attendance was the highest it's ever been. We launched the Center for Washington Cultural traditions with ArtsWA, and hosted events with New York Times columnist Nicholas Kristof, renowned historian Doris Kearns Goodwin, and NPR journalist Joshua Johnson.

It's clear that there is a hunger for Humanities Washington's programming—for gathering together face-to-face to understand our world and each other. For seeing the human being behind the opinion, the fact, or the news story.

The phrase "we couldn't do this without your support" is such a common one as to be numbing, but it bears reflecting on: all of you, from donors to trustees to event attendees, together built something meaningful last year. Humanities Washington is a small organization covering a large state with a giant mandate: to bridge the divides that separate us. Our staff of nine relies on your generosity like few others.

Though we are an organization that loves language, 2018 left us speechless. Thank you for making it a year beyond words.

In gratitude,

Julie Ziegler

PROGRAMS

FAMILY READING uses storytelling and discussion to explore cultural and ethical themes in children's literature and emphasizes the importance of families reading together.

GRANTS assist local organizations in creating opportunities for their community to come together to discuss important issues using the humanities.

SPEAKERS BUREAU draws from a pool of leading cultural experts and scholars to provide free conversational lecture events for community partners to offer local audiences throughout the state.

THINK & DRINK brings hosted conversations on provocative topics and new ideas to pubs and tasting rooms around the state.

WASHINGTON STATE POET LAUREATE builds awareness and appreciation of poetry – including the state's legacy of poetry – through public readings, workshops, lectures, and presentations throughout the state. Managed in partnership with ArtsWA.

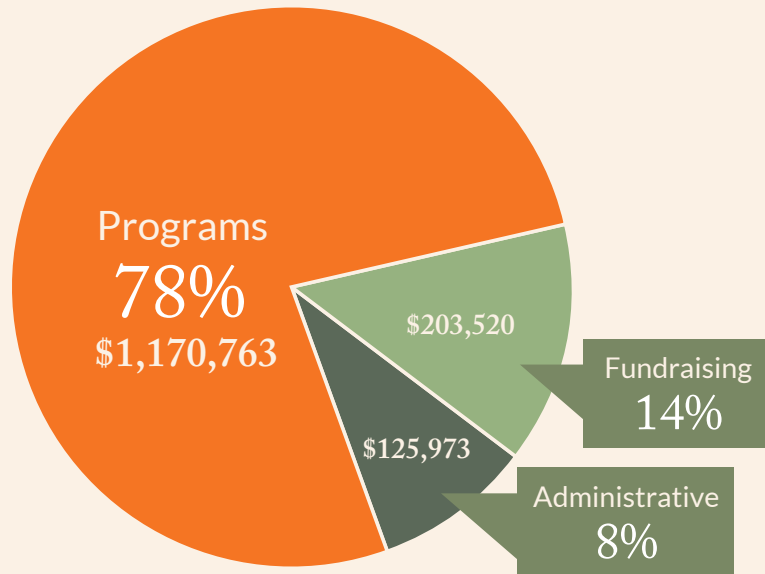

CENTER FOR WASHINGTON CULTURAL TRADITIONS is a new effort to amplify our state's rich, diverse living cultural treasures through research and special programming. Managed in partnership with ArtsWA.

"I felt amazed and so privileged to be on the receiving end of such a concise and cohesive presentation. My family members in attendance shared a dinner following it, and continued to talk about it all, and shared again with other family members the next day. For us, the presentation had a certain balming affect – to be able to talk about politics and society without the heated exchange." —Speakers Bureau attendee, Lakewood

“Once again through Humanities Washington Speakers Bureau, we were able to highlight the library as a safe place to have difficult conversations, especially in a time of political turmoil. These programs help display to the community that the library is not only focused on the items in our collection, but also on becoming a community meeting center. Also, by doing cultural presentations we have increased audience development towards this type of program.” —Librarian, Lacey Timberland Library

"I cannot say enough about the timeliness of Claudia as our Washington State Poet Laureate. Her grace and deep caring about poetry, language, and all people from diverse backgrounds and cultures are exactly what is needed at this time. She is a wonder and a true ambassador of poetry and of peace-making."
